May 25, 1773.

RICHARD M'WILLIAM.

The said servant ran away about a year ago, and was apprehended at Marsh-creek, where it is supposed he will now proceed to; and as he is a weaver by trade, will probably endeavour to get employ in that business.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN,

THAT GEORGE CHARMS, Shoe-maker, in Amberson's Valley, 12 miles westward of Shippensburg, Cumberland county, and province of Pennsylvania, died the 24th day of last August, and willed a good estate to his daughter RUTH CHARMS, whom he had not seen, neither had he any certain account of her, since the year 1763, which is now almost ten years, the which time her mother, ELIZABETH CHARMS, stole her away from her father, the child being then but five or six years of age, is supposed to have forgot her father altogether, and especially if her mother, and a Dutchman, who went off along with her, lives together; the Dutchman's name was THOMAS BASSONER, it is possible he might have changed his name, and have the girl's name changed also; now the estate is in the care of the subscribers, living in the aforesaid Amberson's Valley, 12 miles westward of Shippensburg. Given under our hands, this tenth day of April, 1773.

BARNABAS CLARK,

GEORGE BUCHANAN,

Executors.

By Captain GAMBLE, arrived here from Bristol, and the Captains DAVIDSON, and CHEESMAN, from Falmouth, we have the following Advices, viz.

L U B E C, March 14.

T H E politicians of this place and Hamburg do positively assert, that the Kings of Denmark and Prussia have a strong desire to become masters, not only of these two cities, but several others of the Hanse towns. And the consternation that at present reigns amongst the Magistrates of both towns, gives the colour of probability to the report. The twelve Burgomasters, and the Council, have met very frequently of late, and couiers are always passing and repassing. Whether there is any real foundation or not for the reports which have been broiled about, is impossible at this time to ascertain, but it is the general discourse of all the people in this place.

Madrid, March 1. A Spanish ship has lately arrived at Seville, with dispatches from the Viceroy of Peru, respecting the attempts of the natives of Chili, &c. to free themselves from subjection to the Spaniards, and brings the following account: On the 14th of February, 1772, the Lieutenant Governor of Lima, at the head of 800 Spanish regulars, horse and foot, and 12000 Indians, Negroes, Mestizos, &c. marched out of that city for Chili, and at the same time three ships of war, with some small vessels, sailed from the island of Callao, which is the port to Lima; in order to support the operations of the troops. After a tedious march the Spaniards arrived before the town of Valdivia, which together with those of Imperial Villerica, the cities of Concepcion, Coquimbo, &c. &c. and almost all the places of any importance in the province of Quito, were in possession of the Indians. Soon after the ships, &c. arrived from Valdivia, and attempted to make a passage up to the town, which they soon effected, when immediately the attack began on the land side; the Indians in the town defended themselves for many hours with the greatest bravery, but were at last compelled to give up, though the remaining part of them made an excellent retreat to Villerica, whither the victorious Spaniards followed, and obliged the Indians to make a retreat to the island of Chiloe, which they still keep possession of, though it was invaded when the ships which brought the advice came away.

Warsaw, March 6. A report prevails here that Prince Charles of Saxony will come to the approaching Dyet, to urge his pretensions to the Duchy of Courland, and we are assured that they will meet with support there.

March 10. Our Ministry, in their answer of the 19th of February, require, that all the foreign troops should leave this kingdom, that the Polish nation may hold the Dyet at full liberty; but as there seems to be no preparations for the departure of those troops, it is imagined there will be no Dyetines or Dyet held.

Paris, March 16. The deplorable situation of Poland, and the arbitrary vexations of the King of Prussia, have at last determined our Court, at the instigation of the Court of Spain, and by the advice of the Duke de Choiseul, to interfere in the affairs of that kingdom. Orders have, in consequence, been issued to the greatest part of the troops, both foot and horse, garrisoned in Pöiton and Saintonge, to repair to the borders of the Moselle and Meuse, and all frontier places. A free passage for a body of troops has been granted by the Elector of Bavaria through his dominions; 6000 soldiers are to be shipped on board the fleet which is now arming for the Mediterranean at Brest. The court of Spain is to send two fleets, of 15 men of war each, to the Mediterranean, with 8000 troops on board.

Lord Stormont is expected with great impatience, to settle with our Court what our Ambassador has not been able to do in England.

Danzick, March 21. The fatal blow has at last been given to the privileges of this city. The Burgrave, and all the Courts, have in a formal manner delivered up their power into the hands of the King of Prussia, and with one accord have taken the oaths of allegiance to him; in return for which, he has continued them in office, and given them some honorary rewards; but so restricted them in their power, that they are only the nominal executors of his will. All the Jews of this city are, by the King's command, now removing with all their effects either into Germany or Holland.

Munich, March 21. In the night of the 17th instant died at Ratibon, greatly regretted, of an inflammatory fever, after three days illness, his Serene Highness Alexander Ferdinand, Prince of La Tour and Taxis, his Imperial Majesty's principal Commissary at the Dyet in that city.

Stockholm, March 15. The distillers of grain having presented a petition to the King, to obtain the liberty of distilling from that commodity, his Majesty ordered the following answer to be given them, "That he will not acquiesce to a demand so preposterous and so contrary to his intentions; that they who made it, deserved to be punished for so doing; but that his Majesty, from his usual clemency, is willing to pardon them this time."

Warsaw, March 25. All the advices circulated here relative to the negotiations commenced at the congress of Bucharest, are still vague and uncertain. The last accounts we have received say, the Turks consent that a limited number of Russian ships may freely navigate in the Black Sea; but they resolutely persist in refusing to admit Russian garrisons in the parts of Kerche and Jenicale. By these advices we conjecture, that the present conferences for a peace will be productive of no better success than those at Fockzani. On the other hand, we are assured, that the Porte interests itself vigorously in the affairs of this kingdom, and is desirous of their being included in the treaty of peace; in consequence of which the Porte will propose to Russia the prolongation of the armistice to June next; by that time the Grand Signor will be informed of the manner in which the affairs of Poland will be regulated in the Dyet of Warsaw, where the sittings will begin in April, and terminate in June following; but the general opinion here is, that the Russians will reject this proposal. In the mean time, these two potentates are making the most formidable warlike preparations, in order to be in a condition, if circumstances require it, to open the campaign early.

It appears by the two citations of the third of this month, that the number of those persons who are accused of being guilty of the attempt against the life of the King, is much more considerable than had been expected; there have even been discovered among them above 30 who had not been in the least suspected.

Lisbon, Feb. 25. The King hath published an edict, by which his Majesty orders that the children of slaves shall in future be free, and those who were born since the 16th of last January shall now enjoy that favour.

Paris, March 22. The celebration of the marriage of the Count d'Artois, with Maria Theresia of Savoy, is fixed for the 16th of November next.

Hague, March 30. A few days ago, a courier arrived here from our Consul at Alicante, whose dispatches are as follow: On the 25th of February an edict was published in his Catholic Majesty's name, according to which, all the merchants in his dominions, as well natives as foreigners settled there, are ordered, in future, to keep their books, and write all their letters, even their bills of exchange which are negotiated in foreign countries, in the Spanish or Tuscan language. They are also desired to give notice to all their correspondents abroad, to write to them in no other language than one of those abovementioned. Orders are issued, that all letters or packets be opened at the post-offices upon their arrival, and if any letters are found wrote in any other language, the person to whom such letters are directed will be punished with confiscation of all his goods to the crown, and banishment to his person. The strictest search is ordered to be made on board all ships arriving there, as likewise the ship's crew, passengers, &c. and more severe punishments will be inflicted on the transgressors, according to the nature of the papers found in their possession. All the consuls of the foreign nations immediately assembled, and acquainted their respective ministers at the court of Madrid with this news, and wait with impatience for their answers. As little as this circumstance may seem in the eyes of those not interested therein, it affords much speculation to our politicians, as it is directly opposite to all the treaties with Spain, and an open breach of the treaty of Utrecht in the year 1712, between England, Holland, France, Portugal, Prussia, and Savoy, which was repeated and confirmed, anno 1714, at the conclusion of peace between Spain, England, and Holland.

From the Danube, March 10. They write from Constantinople, that after the arrival of an express from the grand army, the Divan was immediately assembled, and notwithstanding nobody can find out what they have treated about, yet one thing has transpired which has given great joy to the people; it is a very striking and energetic exposition of a number of motives that the Musti has deduced, to demonstrate that they ought never to suffer themselves to be persuaded to cede an inch of land in the Ottoman empire to the Russians, nor allow them to infringe upon its rights and jurisdiction. The other Ministers who were there and heard him, were perhaps of another opinion, but nobody dared oppose his. The credit and esteem the Chief of the Mahometan religion has gained among the people of this capital, has put it so much in his power to say what he pleases on every occasion, that nobody speaks with so much liberty as he does.

Stockholm, March 26. The King has appointed the Queen Dowager, his mother, Governor of Swedish Pomerania. A marriage is talked of between Prince Frederick Adolphus and a Princess of the House of Brunswick Wolfenbuttle.

Hamburgh, March 16. Our Advices from Copenhagen, announce as certain, the approaching marriage of his Danish Majesty with the Princess Wilhelmina of Hesse-Darmstadt.

Turkey, March 19. Our Monarch has begun his reign by advancing to the Council of State the sum of 300,000 livres, to purchase corn in Sardinia, in order to lower the price of that commodity in Savoy.

Edinburgh, April 2. By a gentleman just arrived from the Isle of Sky we learn, that the unlucky spirit of emigration is not at all diminished, and that several of the inhabitants of Sky, Lewes, and other places, are preparing to go to America next season, and seek for that sustenance abroad which they alledge they cannot find at home.

L O N D O N.

March 23. A Correspondent says, "The growing power of the Russians, the enterprising genius of the Prussian Monarch, and the penetrating sagacity of the German Emperor, have all conspired to render the northern confederacy formidable. To oppose it, an unnatural alliance is now entered into between Great-Britain, France, and Spain. Whether the treaty between these three friendly states is simply of the defensive kind; whether it is dictated by a fear of the northern powers, or is to be considered as a master-stroke of policy, the sequel must determine; but that such a compact actually exists, and has been assented to by our Privy Council, the public may be well assured; so that, should there be a call to arms, it will not be against our natural enemies, the French and Spaniards, but probably against those, who, during the last war, were our cordial friends and firm allies. Such is the instability of human policy, as well as human affairs."

March 24. The last accounts from Bengal inform, that Heider Ali was again at the head of a numerous army, which was expected soon to be in motion, but their destination is not known.

Notwithstanding the augmentation of the Civil List is a point no man has yet ventured to agitate, it is believed it will take place before the rise of the present Session.

It is said that a scheme is in agitation, to lay a tax upon kept mistresses, in the following manner: Every Duke to pay for each lady of pleasure 500l. every Earl and Marquis 400l. every Viscount and Baron 300l. every Baronet 200l. all Esquires 100l. and every private Gentleman 50l. per annum. It is thought this duty will, upon the most charitable computation, make up all the deficiencies in the Civil List, and contribute towards keeping up the spirits of the Sinking Fund.

They write from Smyrna, that a most bloody battle was lately fought between the Turks and Persians, in their Asiatic territories, in which the former were very great sufferers. This new enemy (the Sophy of Persia) will embarrass the Porte more than ever Ali Bey did; so that the Empress of Russia has now the best chance to have all her demands on the Porte acceded to, if some Christian powers do not hinder it.

It is said a patent of Peerage is now making out for General Conway.

March 25. A Great Personage has been much offended at the late public notice paid his royal brothers; it was first crept upon to his Majesty by way of smoothing the path to a reconciliation; but it had so contrary an effect, that the Chamberlain has been ever since cautioning the circle to avoid mentioning their names in the most distant manner.

It is confidently asserted, by some persons who are very likely to know, that the Ministry had actually taken a resolution of dissolving the parliament at the close of this session; and that nothing could have prevented it, but the Remonstrance of the city of London for the dissolution of it; as nothing whatsoever is esteemed so great an affront to the honour and dignity of the crown, as such presumption in the lower orders of the people to intermeddle with, and give their opinion about the higher matters of government.

Extract of a Letter from Berlin, March 15.

"His Prussian Majesty seems entirely bent on carrying his new scheme into execution, of becoming a maritime Prince; to accomplish which, he offers the greatest encouragement to ship-builders, riggers, seamen, &c. of whatsoever nation, who will enter into his service. He has likewise ordered the city of Dantzick to supply him with a certain number of seamen, and to build him a ship of 60 guns, at their own expense, and has himself ordered the keels of four new ships, the least of forty guns, to be laid immediately on the stocks in the Dantzick dock-yards."

The following fact may be depended on: Last Monday the celebrated Parson Horne delivered in his gown, and gave up his living, which was accepted of by the Bishop, and intends to apply himself to the study of the law.

March 27. A Letter from Rome by the last Holland mail brings the following remarkable intelligence:—"We have advice from India that the King of Tanjour hath been converted to Christianity by two Jesuits, and received the sacrament of baptism from them; at which time he most solemnly swore to defend the Roman church with all his power. Accordingly he banished all the Heathen priests, ordered all the altars consecrated to the sun to be demolished, and laid the strictest injunctions on his subjects to embrace the same faith; and had sent orders to Tranquebar (of which he is the defender) for all the Danish missionaries to quit that place and neighbourhood."

The late Earl of Chesterfield, convinced by experience of the fatal consequences attendant on gaming, has left his valuable estate to his nephew, now abroad, under certain severe restrictions; among many others equally prudent is the following: "That he never be seen at New-market during any of the meetings, under the penalty of 5000*l.* and that he forfeit the sum of 5000*l.* for any sum of 100*l.* lost by him at any sport or game, at White's, Arthur's Boole's, &c." his Lordship empowering, by his last testament, the Dean and Chapter of Canterbury to sue for and recover the forfeited sums aforesaid, and to appropriate them to the sole use of that church.

Extract of a Letter from Paris, March 1.

"The following remarkable instance of the effects of fear was seen a few days since in the person of Martin Chateauf, a prisoner in the Bastille. This man, who had been tried for murder, was informed one night that he was to die the next morning. The melancholy news filled him with such terror, that his hair, which was as black as jet, became as white as flax. The officers of justice perceiving this, delayed the execution of the sentence: And the King being acquainted with the affair, pardoned the criminal, saying, the man had suffered more than by the most cruel death, in the course of that night."

March 28. Yesterday the King was attended by a numerous court, and seemed very cheerful; and before the Citizens were introduced to his Majesty, they were given to understand, that on such an occasion as the present they were not to expect to kiss the King's hand.

Yesterday the Earl of Stormont took leave of his Majesty, and tomorrow will set out on his embassy to the Court of France.

Yesterday Col. Barre observed in the House of Commons, that opposition was quite dead, and he was left chief mourner over her bier.

March 29. A correspondent says, "A popular Alderman is so excessively pleased with the reply to the city Remonstrance, that he has hardly ceased laughing ever since it was publicly known. It was just the thing he wished and expected, having secretly encouraged and planned the Remonstrance, on purpose to make the chief city Magistrate appear ridiculous."

A person just arrived from Lisbon says, that the Rio Janeiro and Bahia fleet is arrived in the Tagus, and has brought immense treasures, as well for the King, as on account of the merchants and private persons.

It is expected that Parliament will not rise, at soonest, till the 20th of June; nor, if punishments or public censures take place, till the month of July.

March 30. A correspondent says, the Lord Mayor completed his plan of treachery about the Remonstrance on Friday. After every effort to prevent its reaching the throne had failed, and he was forced to obey the Common-hall, he desired the Lord Chamberlain, Lord Hertford, "to assure his Majesty, that he only acted officially, and disavowed the Remonstrance." Lord Hertford, and the courtiers, tell the tale to every body, and laugh at the poorness of the subterfuge. They call him the second City Carrier. Mr. Alderman Harley asked the Lord Mayor with spirit, "why he did not oppose it in Common-hall, if those were his sentiments, but the Remonstrance did not appear to him worse than the two former, which he and Mr. Sawbridge presented?"—How different was the conduct of Mr. Beckford, and with what spirit did he support the resolutions of a Common-hall? What manly language did he hold even to the King? A Lord Chamberlain he scarcely noticed.

Advice is said to be received from Madrid, that a large mob lately surrounded the Royal Palace, and demanded that the effects, taken away from some particular Jesuits, should be restored to their relations. To get them to disperse, the soldiers were called out, but refused to fire upon them, which made the mob more outrageous, whereupon it was by the King, and those about him, thought advisable to promise the populace, that if they would disperse, their demands should be complied with; upon which they all departed.

The monument erected to the memory of General Wolfe, is executed in the form of a pyramid, and will be opened in a few days. The General is represented as naked, pointing to the wound in his breast, and looking with anxiety towards the field of battle. He is seated on an Indian carpet, supported by a grenadier. A Sergeant on one side seems to tell him the enemy run, with a look of joy extremely well expressed. The British Lion is introduced in a happy manner; and, upon the whole, it would be one of the best in the Abbey, if not for a most glaring omission in the grenadier.

Sir Joseph Yorke is expected here from the Hague very soon, on some matters of importance.

Extract of a Letter from Petersburg, March 13.

"Authentic advices received lately here from Bucharest mention, that the treaties of peace went on in a very prosperous manner, notwithstanding the many reports circulated to the contrary, especially in the foreign prints, respecting the Russians having insisted on keeping two garrisoned towns in Crimea Tartary, which never had any foundation, and must appear highly ridiculous, as one of the articles most insisted on by the Empress is, that the inhabitants of Crimea shall be totally independent both of the Muscovites and Turks, and that the troops of both powers should entirely evacuate the country, and leave the Tartars entirely under the government of their own Cham; but if, in the time of any war, they should put themselves under the protection of either Potentate, such Potentate shall be deemed Sovereign of the country. But on the accomplishment of peace, the Crimea should again re-assume its independency."

The present conduct of the French Ambassador and Ministry, with respect to the balls, brings to our recollection the expedition of the Kings of Brentford:—"We shall settle our state affairs—but first we'll have a dance."

The famous alliance which is now almost concluded between England, France and Spain, is universally allowed to be unnatural, and will certainly share the fate of all unnatural things: It is a monster, and cannot live long.

It is reported that the city Remonstrance is to be laid before a Great Assembly.

They write from Paris, that the Court of France has openly declared, that, if any Prussian troops march into Swedish Pomerania, a numerous army shall immediately set out for Embden, Frickland, and other states belonging to Brandenburg.

The House of Commons, it is said, will prolong their sessions till the middle of July, on account of the many affairs still remaining for their consideration.

Two Couriers arrived this day from the continent, with some spirited remonstrances to our Court.

As a fresh stroke to public credit, a very eminent banker stopped payment yesterday.

We hear that the bug-bear, which the King of Prussia holds up continually to deter our King from interfering with the plunderers on the continent, is the ruin of Hanover. If Great-Britain makes one offensive step to interrupt that Monarch's views in this scandalous affair, he threatens, as his first stroke, to pour swarms of troops into Hanover. It appears that these threats are sufficient, for it has been determined in the British cabinet, that the division of Poland can be in no degree injurious to the interest of Britain.

April 1. We hear that the merchants in the city are greatly astonished, that nothing hitherto has been even attempted to be done by Parliament for the support of public credit. At peace with all the world, and likely so to remain, it seems wonderful to observe the present great distress of the merchants, and the low state of all the public funds. The want of mutual confidence prevails more or less every where. Every state, however, except in this country, where the distress originated, has taken some steps to prevent at least the increase of the evil. Here indeed we seem to jog on just as the wind blows, without either sails or rudder, our pilot asleep all the while, or in a sort of apathy which cannot be accounted for.

This day his Majesty went to the House of Peers, and gave the Royal assent to the following bills, viz. The bill for continuing several acts for punishing mutiny and desertion, and for the better payment of the army in America; the bill for defraying the charge of the pay and clothing of the militia for 1773; the bill for the more effectual execution of the criminal laws in both the united kingdoms; the bill for naturalizing such foreign protestants as are settled, or shall settle in America, who have served, or shall serve, as officers or soldiers in the Royal American regiment, or as Engineers in America; and to such other bills as were ready.

Extract of a Letter from the Hague, March 26.

"It is currently reported here that Mr. de Berkenrode, Ambassador from this Republic at the Court of Versailles, in his last dispatches, informed the States General, that France had been for some time secretly enlisting men, and that several regiments have been ordered to march into Provence, and wait there till further orders, which it is said will be to embark at Toulon and Marseilles, in order to go into Italy: That Spain, in concert with France, is sending a great number of troops towards Barcelona, where they are likewise to embark for Italy, and that these two Courts, who have taken umbrage at the House of Austria's increasing its forces, intend to make a diversion in that part of Europe in favour of Poland, by jointly attacking the duchies of Milan and Mantua, &c."

Letters from Leghorn mention, that they have advice from the coast of Africa, that the Barbary regencies are equipping with great diligence in their respective ports, a great number of ships of war, which are said to be destined to reinforce the Ottoman fleet.

Extract of a Letter from Carrick on Suir, in Ireland, March 15.

"The White Boys are spreading their ravages through the country more than ever; they have committed several outrages in the neighbourhood of Templemum, and in the Welsh mountains, within these 12 months past. They went three several times to the house of William Welch, of Ashdown, within the last three weeks; the first time he made his escape through the thatch and wailing of his house; the second time he was prepared for them, assisted by some friends, who fired from the house, and wounded several of the White Boys; but last Thursday night a large party, to the number of 300, in their white uniforms, armed with a blunderbuss, guns, cutlasses, &c. went a third time to the same house, and after firing several shots through the door and windows, wounded a man belonging to the house in several parts of his body; some of the party got upon the house, and threw down the chimney, whilst others with crows and pickaxes undermined the walls of the house, and then went and smashed all his goods and furniture. The only cause for all this outrageous proceeding was on account of his taking a farm."

There is an account from Port Louis, that five French ships for the island of Bourbon, in the East-Indies, were to sail, accompanied by two men of war and a large frigate, and that there were some men of war of the line failed for the West-Indies.

A great number of artificers in the stocking branch of business, have within these few days engaged themselves for Boston and New-York, to be employed in that manufactory, now carrying on with success in those places.

April 3. We hear that Sir John Dalrymple has lately discovered some curious manuscripts, in the ruins of Herculaneum, by which it appears, that the old Greek and Roman patriots were traitors to their country.

His Majesty's packet-boat Eagle, Captain Nickolls, having on board his Excellency the Right Hon. Lord Charles Greyville Montagu, Governor of South-Carolina, and Family, is arrived safe at Falmouth from thence.

April 6. The following papers now lie before the House of Commons for their inspection:

An account of the quantity of Tea exported from Scotland to any of his Majesty's colonies in America for the last ten years, ending the 5th of January, 1773.

An account of the quantity of Cheese exported from Scotland to any country, not being part of the British dominions, from the 1st of January, 1760, to the 1st of January, 1773.

An account of the quantity of foreign Linen imported into Scotland from Christmas, 1769, to the 10th of October, 1772.

The preamble to the corn bill, which passed the House of Commons on Friday, states, That whereas the old laws made concerning the duties on corn imported, and the bounty on corn exported, have been of late years suspended by temporary acts, to the great discouragement of agriculture, and to the loss of the corn trade; and that a permanent law, laying down certain and known rules for the importation of corn, and for the bounty on exportation thereof, so framed as to suit our present circumstances, and to become practicable, would render such temporary laws no longer necessary, would afford encouragement to the farmer, would be the means of increasing the growth of corn, and would therefore afford a cheaper and constant supply to the poor, and also prevent abuses in the corn trade; therefore the law enacts, that when wheat, and other grain, becomes so dear as to begin to be out of the reach of the labourer and poor to buy it, it shall no longer be exported; but, on the contrary, that wheat, at a low duty, may be imported; yet, so long as it is cheap, and there is plenty, and so long as it remains at a moderate price, it may always be exported, which exportation is always to be attended with a bounty, in order to enable the merchant to meet the foreign market with advantage; and in order to encourage our shipping, this bounty is given only to corn shipped in British shipping. There are in the said many other regulations calculated for the benefit of trade.

Great preparations are now making in expectation of the delivery of the Duchesse of Gloucester, which is looked for in a very short time.

Extract of a Letter from the Hague, April 2.

"An affair has lately happened which makes a great noise here. Six soldiers belonging to the regiment of Dutch foot guards had leave given them to go and see their friends, and upon their return home, passing through Ham, in Westphalia, belonging to the King of Prussia, they were seized by a recruiting party there, and forced to enlist in the Prussian service. Two other men belonging to that regiment met with the same treatment in the Electorate of Cologne, and were forced into the Imperial service. As the Royal Family of Prussia is at present closely connected with the House of Orange, we are not without hopes, that the six men first mentioned may be given up, but the others are looked upon as lost."

Yesterday there was a numerous meeting of the creditors of Sir George Colebrooke, Lefingham, and Muns, at the London Tavern, at half an hour after twelve, when George Wilson, Esq; being the principal creditor, was desired to take the chair. He informed the gentlemen present that, at the desire of the partners, he had for some days past employed himself in examining and looking into the state of the partnership accounts, and, with Sir George Colebrooke's permission, he had also examined Sir George's private books. It appeared to him, he said, that on the partnership account there would be a deficiency of upwards of forty thousand pounds; but that, in Sir George's private concerns, after making an allowance for the above deficiency, and supposing a loss of one hundred thousand pounds on the debt due to Sir George by his brother-in-law, there appeared to be a surplus of one hundred and eighty thousand pounds, after discharging every private debt. Whilst Mr. Wilson was speaking, Sir George Colebrooke came into the room, and, as soon as Mr. Wilson had finished, informed the company of some of the particulars which had been already mentioned, and added, that had he retired from business two years ago, he might have valued himself worth something more than three hundred thousand pounds, that in the present situation of his affairs, his fortune must, in some measure, depend on the result of what those effects should sell for, which he had been forced to take an assignment of from his only very large debtor and near relation; that since he had got this assignment made to him, he had not been idle, having, in the interval, employed himself in cancelling and putting an end to the many contracts, which his kinsman had sanguinely entered into, some of which were for two or three years to come; that he had nearly accomplished this purpose, there being only two, and these of no great consequence, which were not closed. He then informed the company, that after making supposed and large deductions for loss upon that account, he had reason to believe there would remain to him the balance, which had been stated by Mr. Wilson, but desired them to observe, that in this balance was included the sum of one hundred thousand pounds, settled on his family. He then concluded with saying, that tho' the winding up of his affairs, which were very voluminous, might require time; yet as it would appear evident to any gentlemen they should appoint to inspect his accounts, that no creditor would be a sufferer, he flattered himself they would grant him that time and forbearance, which was necessary for the purpose; and if they complied with this request, he was ready to acknowledge and become bound, that every individual should receive interest from this date till their accounts should be finally settled. This gave such general satisfaction, that they unanimously agreed in naming five of the principal creditors to inspect the partnership books, and Sir George's private books, and to report to the general body of creditors on Tuesday, the 4th of May, their opinion thereupon. On being informed that some of the money lodged at Sir George Colebrooke's shop was on account of gentlemen employed by government, one of whom had taken out an extent, they further resolved that the Committee should have power to employ the effects of the shop towards satisfying the demands of this creditor immediately, and that they should likewise have power, in case any other public money should be found to be lodged at C. L. and B's banking shop, to employ other effects belonging to them towards the immediate discharge thereof, in order to prevent all future extents. This, however, was only a precaution thought necessary to be taken, lest the partners should be under a mistake, for they upon examination declared they had no other creditor whose cash could in their opinion be deemed to be public money, two only excepted, who being both present, declared to the body of creditors, that they were willing and ready to consent that their balances should be considered as private deposits. The creditor, who had taken out the extent, behaved in the most handsome and generous manner, saying, that though the extent he was in possession of, put it in his power to be instantly reimbursed from the whole of Sir George Colebrooke's effects, wherever they lay, yet he was so perfectly satisfied with the solidity and security of his funds, that he had only done it in compliance with the duty he owed to the Government for public money

TWENTY POUNDS Reward, For securing JOHN FARRAN, in Lancaster Goal, in PENNSYLVANIA.

NO doubt the Reason you would know,
Why with our Money we'll part so;
The following Lines be pleased to read,
And they will tell the Cause indeed.
In April last was stole away,
From each of us (we're bold to say)
Two stately Horses, stout and strong,
And Farran did the cruel Wrong:
With Saddles too, and other Goods,
Which he did carry to the Woods;
The honest Neighbours round about,
Did hunt and find the Villain out.
The Horses with him they did find,
Then to his Heels he did incline;
And o'er the Hill did briskly fly,
But would not wait for Company.
Where he is gone, we cannot say,
But he's a Rogue, by Night and Day.
To tell his Marks we do incline,
His Age may be full Thirty-nine;
He'll change his Name too, now and then,
His Height may be full five Feet ten;
His Hair is black, Complexion too;
And as it suits, says Thee, or You;
To tell his Clother, it will or fail,
For them he'll Change, or more will steal;
He is a stout and well made Fellow,
And in his Colour something Yellow;
This Villain's Craft indeed is such,
That he can pass amongst the Dutch;
Their Language he has very pat,
And loves to see a Horse that's fat.
This Rogue is known both far and near,
To Real and fell, from Year to Year.
Four Horses he from us did cleek,
Within some better than a Week;
Each one might fetch, of ready Pay,
Full Thirty Pounds, we dare to say.
Is it a Wonder we are vex'd,
With such a Thief to be perplex'd?
Therefore this Favour we do pray,
That him ye seize, by Night or Day;
And when you have him, do not fail,
To lodge him safe, in th' aforesaid Goal;
Which if you do, the Cash we'll pay,
Upon the Nail, without Delay.
And when you want to see our Faces,
Mayor and Carravan Townships are our Dwelling-places.

WHEREAS, in August 1768, Lyn-Ford Lardner, of the city of Philadelphia, Executor of William Branfon, advertised a parcel of land to be sold, in East-Cala, in Chester county, sixty acres, part of said land, I bought at public sale (the articles then and there signed by said Lardner as follows, one third of the purchase-money to be paid in three months from the day of sale, at which time a good title was to be made, the purchaser giving good security for the payment of the remainder in twelve months from that date, with lawful interest) which article I have complied with, as to the first payment, and am ready and willing to pay the remainder, whenever said Lardner, or any other person, lawfully empowered, does execute me a sufficient title; but, to my surprize, I see in Hall and Sellers's paper, of a late date, the said tract of land advertised for sale, by Henry Hays, High Sheriff of this county, the meaning of such usage I do not understand, as I have built and made considerable improvements on said lands. Therefore, these may fore-warn the said Sheriff from selling, or any person from buying said tract of sixty acres of land, as I am determined to hold the same, and apprehend I have a good right so to do.

from TWENTY to FORTY-FIVE Pounds per Annum, wanted

MATTHEW CLARKSON, Notary Public.

Just arrived in this City from London,
DR. WILLIAM DAY,

WHO, under God, undertakes to dissolve the stone in the kidneys and bladder (be it ever so long standing) without pain, anxiety or hindrance of business, or confining the patient to regimen of diet, and this by a medicine which is pleasant to the taste, and as agreeable to be taken as a glass of wine.---He has by a long course of practice experienced its virtue, and found it to answer, when the patients were thought incurable by any other method, but by cutting for its extraction. He has now by him a stone of about seven ounces weight, which was voided from himself by the alone help of his great and wonderful dissolvent; after having tried for many years the most eminent professors in Great-Britain and Ireland to no purpose.

He sells and prepares pills, which wonderfully and with the greatest expedition cure intermittent fevers, and those agues which those fevers proceed from; in the course of a long successful practice he never found those pills to fail. Likewise the famous and much celebrated Dr. Tissot's tincture for the fever and ague for those who cannot take pills, which infallibly cures that disorder.

He likewise prepares and sells pills (by only taking one box, to which there is proper directions) that infallibly eradicate that painful disorder the rheumatism.

His never failing worm cake, which destroys that vermin so pernicious to children, as well as adults, that many have through inattention lost their lives by them; those he prepares in a peculiar manner to himself, and have been found in virtue and safety to excel any of the sort yet exhibited or administered for that purpose.

Of the Doctor may be had, his most incomparable and never failing pectoral drops, prepared by a tedious chymical process by digestion, distillation and sublimation, being a safe and speedy cure for coughs, colds, asthma, phthisick, wheezings, shortness of breath, and all sorts of consumptions, these drops instantly relieve the patient in the most suffocating fit of an asthma, and make a perfect cure by continuing them for some time; in the course of thirty-five years practice they never once failed him, in the cure of the above recited disorders, and are infallible in the chin cough or whooping-cough in children; it is a great preserver of the lungs, and immediately relieves in pleuritis; this and many more virtues may be ascribed to those his restoring chymical drops, which for brevity sake he passes over.

Sold and prepared by the Doctor, a Liniment for sore, red and inflamed eyes, much superior to that called Sir Hans Sloan's; with this he has cured many whose eyes have been covered with opake films and cicatrices, left by inflammations and spotfumes of the cornea; it is not only beneficial in such cases, but also, where there is an excessive pain in the eyes, shooting thence up into the head; many who were led to him, after some little time, could perfectly find their way without a guide.

The Doctor has taken a house in Vine-Street, near Fourth-Street, has his name on a brass plate over the door, he has private and convenient lodgings for any who may put themselves under his care; he cures a stent gonorrhoea in a short time, so as not to be known by a bed-fellow that the party labours under any symptom of the disorder; a confirmed lues he cures without salivating, with all the circumstances attending this disorder, such as the dysury, stranguary and chordee, phymosis, paraphymosis, chancres, bubores, abscess in the peritonium, excreescences and fistules about the anus, femoral weakness, old obstinate gleet, in both sexes.

He immediately eases all pains in the head and teeth, let them be ever so violent, without the least trouble to the patient; such Gentlemen and Ladies, who at any time may labour under those excruciating pains, on sending the least notice, he will wait on them at their houses. Persons who are at such a distance that their circumstances wont admit of their personal attendance, may have the medicine adapted to their respective disorders sent them, with proper directions.

He has for sale, Turlington's genuine balsam of life, Anderson's true Scotch pills, with several other patent medicines, which he has brought with him from London, and shall sell as low as any person in the city.

N. B. The Doctor gives attendance at his house, from eight in the morning till twelve o'clock, and in the afternoon, from two to six o'clock.

The poor well recommended shall be assisted.

At taking the horses from him, there was also got with said horses, an ash coloured roccolo, of broadcloth, a pair of blue worsted stockings, supposed to be stolen, as said Faron is a notorious horse thief. He is about 5 feet 10 inches high, and of a black complexion.
